U-M Funding for Study Abroad

Funding for study abroad is available from financial aid and scholarships through the University of Michigan.

Financial Aid

You can apply for financial aid at the Office of Financial Aid's Study Abroad [1] page. Be sure to check deadlines at the Office of Financial Aid website. For non U-M programs, use of financial aid may be problematic. Some non-U-M programs may be willing to process some types of financial aid.

Scholarships

Global Michigan [2] provides links to funding sources across the University for education abroad experiences – both for credit and not for credit.

Korea-Michigan Human Rights Research Fellowship [7] is offered by the Donia Human Rights Center to support summer research on human rights in South Korea. It is open to graduate and advanced undergraduate students interested in studying human rights in Korea.

LSA Barger Leadership Institute [8] offers a Global Internship Scholarship for students looking to explore the practice of leadership in a global context.

LSA Germanic Languages and Literatures [9] offers many competitive awards, scholarships, and academic prizes for its undergraduate students.

LSA Program in International and Comparative Studies (PICS) [10] extends financial support to University of Michigan students engaging in projects related to: human rights, international development, international security and cooperation, global health and environment, and comparative culture and identity.

LSA Residential College [11] allocates funds to help several students cover travel, living, or other expenses during internships and research.
The Department of Romance Languages and Literatures offers scholarships specifically for study abroad. Note that some scholarships are open to only declared majors in a Romance language, while others are open to students just studying the language.

These scholarships are open to all LSA students who have been enrolled at U-M at least one full year and are awarded on the basis of academic merit and financial need. Award amounts vary and may be used towards study abroad.

The Student Academic Multicultural Initiatives Program (SAMI) offers limited grants to U-M undergraduate students for multicultural-related study abroad, internships, or research purposes.

This U-M office lists some of the major government international scholarships and fellowships, such as the Fulbright, Gilman, Boren, and Critical Language Scholarships.

The Rackham Graduate School lists numerous scholarships and grants for Master's and Doctoral students.

Graduating seniors can apply for the Rhodes, Marshall, Gates Cambridge, Mitchell, Churchill, and NIH OxCam scholarships.
