There are lots of opportunities for UM graduate student funding for abroad experiences. Below is a list of U-M offices with funding opportunities. Other important resources include:

- Your UM School or College
- Department or degree program
- International office within your school/college
- Professors
- Foreign Language departments

U-M Offices That May Have Funding for U-M Graduate Students

U-M International Institute

The International Institute has the most comprehensive listing of all U-M funding sources for international educational activities. It includes International Institute Fellowships (for internships, research, theses, dissertations; available for all students, including non-U.S. citizens) and IIE-Fulbright and Fulbright-Hays Fellowships.

- US/ED Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships (FLAS)
- Listings of specialized grants via web sites and email lists
- Some centers will consider grant applications or offer grants (e.g. Center for Chinese Studies, Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (CREES), Center for Afro-American and African Studies (CAAS), South Africa Initiative, Weiser Center for Europe and Eurasia (WCEE), Center for Southeast Asian Studies, Center for South Asian Studies, and more – check with the center that corresponds with the area to which you’ll be traveling.

Area Studies Centers

- Center for the Education of Women
- Grantees for women who propose research on women's issues (also available to undergraduates). CEW also offers a fellowship for graduate students pursuing fieldwork or research in South or Southeast Asia.

Rackham Fellowships Office

- Fellowships for students in Rackham graduate degree programs

The Ginsberg Center

- Offers grants for individuals or groups doing internships or research with a service, social justice or “community-based” focus. See Fellowships as well as Student Resources.
William Davidson Institute – Student Projects & Internships [14]

Offers several grant and internship programs for graduate students.

Raoul Wallenberg International Summer Travel Fellowship (administered by the International Center) [15]

In the spirit of Raoul Wallenberg's experience at Michigan, the Raoul Wallenberg International Summer Travel Fellowship will allow selected students to take part in a community service project or civic participation anywhere in the world. Can be found on MCompass [16]. Search Scholarship Programs: "Wallenberg."
