International development is a highly professional sector. It is difficult to break into and demands great initiative and leadership to advance professionally within the field. One of the three specific activities Peace Corps Prep requires to strengthen your candidacy for the Peace Corps (or any other professional endeavor) is to engage in an interview prep/mock interview activity with someone at a career center on campus. Students may work with the U-M Career Center or one of the career centers located within a specific school or college.

The Career Center provides a number of resources to assist with interviews. We encourage you to review these resources BEFORE sitting down with a career advisor. When you are ready to meet with an advisor, please make an appointment. At the completion of the meeting, please have the advisor you meet with complete the section below.

Advisor Name:__________________________________________________________________
Department:___________________________________________________________________
Date:____________________ Length of Meeting:______________________________________

Please provide a brief summary of the meeting:

Career Center Advisor Signature:________________________________ Date:______________